

NYU's Robert F. Wagner Graduate School of Public Service is honored to house the Lisa Goldberg Fellowships. Lisa Goldberg was the celebrated President of the Charles H. Revson Foundation and the beloved wife of John Sexton, the President of New York University, and left a legacy of the visionary and critical role philanthropy can play in both bringing promising ideas to fruition and increasing their impact. She also embodied a deep commitment to public service and to the Jewish community. Her legacy is honored in the following two fellowships: The Lisa Goldberg Fellowship in Philanthropy supports the work of promising students who seek to examine and understand philanthropy and its crucial role in public service in New York City, across the country and globally. The Lisa Goldberg Fellowship in Jewish Leadership supports the work of outstanding students with evident commitment to the Jewish community and plans to take on leadership work within this community after graduation. Each fellowship provides up to 100% tuition reimbursement, as well as access to a network of leaders across sectors that has committed to mentoring and working with the Goldberg Fellows to honor Lisa's memory.
