Course Description

We will be studying the issuance and management of debt by state and local governments from both a programmatic and transactional perspective during a period of historic change in the public finance markets. We will track the evolution of a bond transaction from the identification of financing need through the issuance of publically and privately sold debt. We will explore typical municipal debt structures with a focus on how they relate to the governmental purpose being financed. We will use EXCEL to model both the debt structures and the core calculations used in public finance to evaluate transactional performance. We will study in detail the primary offering document (the “Official Statement”) used to market municipal debt to investors. We will learn how to use the EMMA (Electronic Municipal Market Access) website sponsored by the Municipal Securities Rulemaking Board.

We will explore these topics with a special focus on the perspective of the public officials responsible for managing their municipality’s bond issuance programs. We will also study the concerns of other participants in the municipal securities marketplace including investment bankers, credit rating analysts, investors, regulators, bond attorneys and the federal officials.
Course and Learning Objectives
We approach this course during one of the most dynamic periods in the history of the capital markets. The 2020 pandemic is having a dramatic impact on how municipalities and not for profit institutions finance their operations. At the same time, emerging market nations around the world are attempting to establish the public and private sector frameworks needed to access the capital markets and expand financing options for critical infrastructure, health care, and economic development projects during a period of historic environmental and social need.

The primary objectives of this course are:

1. to develop an understanding of the role of each participant in the debt issuance/capital markets process,
2. to develop fixed income cash flow modelling capability relevant to the type of debt being issued by public finance entities,
3. to develop the ability to read and interpret bond and note offering statements and related transaction documents, and
4. to develop the fundamental understanding needed to be effective and forceful leaders in this new world of governmental project financing.

Course Website
The course website resides on the NYU Brightspace system and is accessible via the “Academics” tab on NYU Home.

Assignment and Grading

- Two homework assignments: 30%
- Term Project: 40% (Can be individual or small groups)
- Take-home final: 30%

The Term Project can be either a research paper relating to any topic relevant to the course or a structured finance project that I will tailor to your specific area of interest.
Required Readings

I have assigned chapters from the following works. All four have been ordered at the NYU Bookstore and are also available in print and in digital format from Amazon.

Additional readings of interest will be assigned on a weekly basis and made available on the Course Website.

Academic Integrity

Academic integrity is a vital component of Wagner and NYU. All students enrolled in this class are required to read and abide by Wagner's Academic Code. All Wagner students have already read and signed the Wagner Academic Oath. Plagiarism of any form will not be tolerated and students in this class are expected to report violations to me. If any student in this class is unsure about what is expected of you and how to abide by the academic code, you should consult with me.

Attendance

I will not be keeping track of attendance but strongly encourage you to attend all classes in order that you can achieve a full and proper understanding of the course material. This is especially important for this course owing to the dynamic nature of the critical matters being discussed.
