Course Description

Over the last few decades, disparities in income, wealth, and mobility have widened in the United States, but the U.S. fares worse in wealth inequality than income inequality. Wealth, in particular, is crucial to many functions across the life course and between generations, including but not limited to: spending on healthcare and education, acquiring and retaining investments for profit, weathering unexpected expenses or shocks, ascribing social status, and transferring assets to children and/or other family members. The single-family suburban home is the cornerstone of average household wealth and a symbol of the American Dream, but who has wealth in the U.S. is heavily impacted by historical and systematic inequality.

This seminar brings a sociological and policy lens to the discourse on wealth inequality. The course begins with the following questions: What is wealth? What kind of assets make up one’s wealth? Why does wealth matter? Students will delve into the history and wealth trends in the United States before focusing on the intersection of the following themes and wealth: homeownership, financial institutions, intergenerational transfers, and financial technology.

Course and Learning Objectives

Following this course, students should be able to:

1. Define wealth, describe and analyze major trends in wealth inequality in the US
2. Understand how race, gender, immigration status, etc. intersect to pattern wealth inequality and barriers to wealth-building across populations
3. Assess evidence and readings from various disciplines to draw insights and evaluate explanations for wealth inequality
4. Organize and communicate their ideas and arguments in a clear, written form using academic sources to support their claims

Required Readings

Links and PDFs for required readings and additional materials are available via Brightspace. If you are interested, I will share additional readings and materials (e.g. podcasts) – however, completing the required readings is the expectation for class.

Assessment Assignments and Evaluation

Below is the breakdown of class assignments and percentage of your final grade as well as how each assignment corresponds to course objectives.

Individual Assessment

- Class Participation, 20%
- Selected Reading Responses, 25%
- Net Worth and Zip Code Paper, 25%
- Final Policy Brief, 30%
All assignments should be submitted via Brightspace. The formatting requirements are: 1-inch margins, single-spaced, 12 pt. font size in a standard font (i.e. Arial or Times New Roman).

Class Participation – 20%
This is a small class, and your presence and participation are valuable and important to our class sessions. We all want to hear from you. Class participation involves attending class sessions, going to office hours, active listening, asking questions, and contributing to in-class discussions. The quality of your contributions is more important than the quantity.

Reading Responses – 25%
You will complete three short reading responses (500 words) due by 11:59pm on Wednesday evening before our class meeting. These responses are not meant to be a summary of the readings, but rather a place for you to share some initial thoughts and questions as well to keep everyone accountable for the readings ahead of our class meeting. For every week, I have included guiding questions for the readings and theme—if you need guidance on what to write about, you can address these questions in your response. On weeks that you submit a reading response, it is expected that you will help facilitate the class discussion.

Net Worth and Zip Code Paper (3 pages) – 25%
In this assignment, you will draw from the Financial Health and Wealth Dashboard (link) to compare and contrast two zip codes based on their median net worth.

Select two zip codes from the Dashboard – this does not need to be where you grew up, however, it is helpful to select places that you are acquainted/familiar with based on the geography, history, economy, education, policy, etc.

These two zip codes can be in the same state or in different states- the key point of this paper is to examine how wealth (captured by median net worth here) is tied to geography. Think about the way structural factors we have discussed in class (e.g. policies, banking and institutions, homeownership, home values, discrimination, etc.) have shaped the geography of wealth and opportunity across the United States. You must draw from the class readings as well as additional sources for your analysis. A detailed prompt and grading rubric is available on Brightspace.

Wealth Inequality Policy Brief (3 pages) – 30%
In your final assignment, you will draft a policy brief addressing an issue related to wealth inequality or a barrier to wealth-building (from our class readings or from your own work/experience). You will evaluate how contemporary policies address this issue/barrier and make a policy recommendation. In the first part of the brief, you will reflect on this issue’s historical context and the sociodemographic disparities it creates.
In the second part, you will briefly evaluate how contemporary policies address this issue before making a policy recommendation. This recommendation can be an existing measure or something new. A detailed prompt and grading rubric will be available on Brightspace.

Late Submission Policy for Assignments

Extensions will be granted only in the case of an emergency. Please reach out to me if your submission is late without extensions. Late submissions without extensions will be penalized 5% per 24-hour period.

Brightspace

All announcements, resources, and assignments will be delivered through the Brightspace site. I may modify assignments, due dates, and other aspects of the course as we go through the term with advance notice provided as soon as possible through the course website.

Academic Integrity

Academic integrity is a vital component of Wagner and NYU. All students enrolled in this class are required to read and abide by Wagner’s Academic Code. All Wagner students have already read and signed the Wagner Academic Oath. Plagiarism of any form will not be tolerated and students in this class are expected to report violations to me. If any student in this class is unsure about what is expected of you and how to abide by the academic code, you should consult with me.

Henry and Lucy Moses Center for Student Accessibility

Academic accommodations are available for students with disabilities. Please visit the Moses Center for Students with Disabilities (CSD) website and click the “Get Started” button. You can also call or email CSD (212-998-4980 or mosescsd@nyu.edu) for information. Students who are requesting academic accommodations are strongly advised to reach out to the Moses Center as early as possible in the semester for assistance.
NYU’s Calendar Policy on Religious Holidays

NYU’s Calendar Policy on Religious Holidays states that members of any religious group may, without penalty, absent themselves from classes when required in compliance with their religious obligations. Please notify me in advance of religious holidays that might coincide with exams to schedule mutually acceptable alternatives.

NYU’s Wellness Exchange

NYU’s Wellness Exchange has extensive student health and mental health resources. A private hotline (212-443-9999) is available 24/7 that connects students with a professional who can help them address day-to-day challenges as well as other health-related concerns.
