

NYU Wagner In the Media: April 2011

Date	Media	Headline	Wagner Source	Discipline	Interview/Excerpt
April 5, 2011		Government Shutdown: What it Means for Candidates in 2012	Paul Light	Politics	"I think both parties take the hit on this one."
April 6, 2011		Cuomo's Centrism Draws Praise but Stirs Suspicion	Richard Brodsky	Governance	"I don't think we can make any real ideological judgments about Andrew, because there was a political tsunami he rode with great skill."
April 6, 2011		The Fragile Success of School Reform in the Bronx	Capstone Program	Education	The idea, which he enlisted a class of students at New York University's Robert F. Wagner Graduate School of Public Service to help develop, is to create a nonprofit attached to the school and to purchase an abandoned building in the neighborhood that would be converted into a dormitory. It's a radical notion — a public inner-city boarding school — but it's also very much in keeping with González's expansive vision for 223.
April 8, 2011		A Missed Opportunity for 29 Flatbush [Commentary]	Daniel Doyle [Alumnus]	Urban Planning	"The Dermot Company is treading hard on a community already reckoning with tough issues-- on jobs, affordable housing, and cost of living."
April 12, 2011		A 30-year Success: What's Next for LISC?	Paul Light	Public & Nonprofit	There's a real risk of "service deserts" for poor peoples' needs in the cities, he warned, suggesting LISC "needs to fight" hard against anti-social forces abroad in the nation.
April 12, 2011		U.S. Jewish Leaders Split Along Politics on Impact of Egypt Changes	Berman Jewish Policy Archive	International Development	Most Jewish leaders looked favorably upon what they see as growing interest in democracy and human rights in the new Egypt, but they were split on what it means for Israel, according to the Berman Jewish Policy Archive at NYU Wagner survey.
April 13, 2011		Elie Wiesel Urges Students to Explore Choice Between Good and Evil	Reynolds Program	Leadership	Elie Wiesel, Nobel Peace Prize winner, acclaimed writer and Holocaust survivor, spoke last night to a full house at the Puck Building for an event entitled "An Ethical Compass: Coming of Age in the 21st Century."
April 20, 2011		Comunidades costeras de EU padecen secuelas del derrame petrolero	Carlos Restrepo	Infrastructure	"There is a lot of uncertainty about the long-term impacts of not only the oil spill but also of the chemical dispersants used in the clean-up on various ecosystems such as mangrove forests and wetlands in the coasts of Louisiana, Alabama and Mississippi that are very fragile."
April 21, 2011		Should We Feed North Korea? [Commentary]	Dorothy Stuehmke [Alumna]	International Development	Is there a true humanitarian need, can we address the potential risk of food diversion and can a properly monitored program allow us to engage with the vulnerable citizens of one of the most isolated countries in the world?
April 22, 2011		Islamophobia	Irshad Manji	Race, Class & Diversity	"Chris, it will take a psychotherapist to figure out what his [Quran-burning Florida pastor Terry Jones] real point is...His hate speech should be combatted not with censorship, but with more speech."
April 26, 2011		A Loss in the Nonprofit Battle Against "Modest, Passionate, and Utterly Disorganized" [Commentary]	Sonia Ospina	Public & Nonprofit	"The recent expose by 60 Minutes and other organizations, which challenge the practices and experiences chronicled in Greg Mortenson's book Three Cups of Tea , is not only disappointing, but also potentially damaging to the nonprofit sector more generally."
April 26, 2011		On Armory, Bloomberg Says 'We're Open to Every Good Idea'	Capstone Program	Urban Planning	A report drafted by students from NYU's Wagner School includes recommendations for redeveloping the landmark site.
April 28, 2011		Challenges to Diversity in the Public Service Sector [Full Report]	Research Center for Leadership in Action	Leadership	A 2010 project developed at the Research Center for Leadership in Action at New York University's Robert F. Wagner Graduate Center for Public Service, in support of the National Urban Fellows Public Service Leadership Diversity Initiative.