

NYU Wagner In the Media: February 2010

Date	Media	Headline	Wagner Source	Discipline	Interview/Excerpt
February 2, 2010	 FOREIGN AFFAIRS Published by the Council on Foreign Relations	What to Read on Foreign Aid	John Gershman/ Faculty	Foreign Affairs	"Over the course of the twentieth century, the richer, more industrialized nations of the world shifted from seeing the poorer nations as targets of conquest or exploitation to seeing them as problems in need of solutions."
February 2, 2010	 THE WALL STREET JOURNAL	Once-Robust Charity Sector Hit With Mergers, Closings	Paul Light / Faculty	Organizational Performance	"There were too many poorly performing nonprofits. There were very many niche nonprofits devoted to small slices of a problem and they needed to be merged."
February 3, 2010	 The Washington Post	Federal Eye: Time for another 'War on Waste'?	Paul Light / Faculty	Federal Government	"That's not chicken feed. This has been around for awhile, it's one of the hidden problems in the sluggish appointment process. You've just got too many people to push through the process."
February 4, 2010	 NY1	Markowitz Sworn In For Third Term; Touts Borough's Progress	Capstone Program	Urban Planning	The Borough President announced a new pet project during his 'State of the Borough' address at the Park Slope Armory, revealing that a team of urban planning grad students from NYU Wagner is spearheading a redesign project.
February 7, 2010	 The New York Times	Retired Officers Raise Questions on Crime Data	Dennis C. Smith / Faculty	Police Management	"We conclude, as did the state comptroller five years ago, that the city and department officials, and the public can be reasonably assured that the N.Y.P.D. data are accurate, complete and reliable."
February 7, 2010	 NEW YORK POST	NYPD stats were captain cooked	Dennis C. Smith / Faculty	Police Management	"We can feel confident that the crime stats they are using are real. It's not somebody's imagination or fabrication that crime is down."
February 9, 2010	 Bloomberg Businessweek	Toyota Faces U.S. Recall Inquiries as Washington Lobbying Force	Rogan Kersh / Associate Dean/ Faculty	Congress	"Toyota learned the lobbying game swiftly and ahead of most other non-U.S. carmakers. ... The real test comes now, when the company is facing a real safety crisis and lots of questions, rather than smiling faces, on Capitol Hill."
February 10, 2010	 NEW YORK POST	Marty says that Fourth Avenue could be awesome someday	Frank Fish / Adjunct Faculty	Urban Planning	The graduate students will present their final proposal in April. Their professor, Frank Fish, said that the final presentation "could form the basis for a more detailed proposal that city agencies or an architectural firm might do."
February 10, 2010	 TIME	Snow Is No Longer a Joking Matter in Washington	Paul Light / Faculty	Federal Government	The paralysis is "another example of how poorly the federal government responds in times of stress."
February 13, 2010	 REUTERS INDIA	Row over U.S. jobs bill shows Democratic divisions	Paul Light / Faculty	Federal Government	"This hurts Obama. People think he's a good guy, a smart guy. But there are a lot of questions about whether he can lead toward his promise of 'change in Washington.'"
February 16, 2010	 THE HUFFINGTON POST	Reality Check: One Year after Stimulus, Blacks and Latinos Still Struggling (oped)	C. Nicole Mason / Director	Racial Disparity	"On the one-year anniversary of the stimulus bill, the administration will do much to convince us that it is indeed working. However, it's going to take more than colorful pie charts and grandiose projections to ease the anxiety and the angst gripping communities. For Blacks and Latinos, relief and employment remain elusive."
February 16, 2010	 gather	Are Traditional Nonprofits Becoming Obsolete?	Paul Light / Faculty	Organizational Performance	"There have been very many niche nonprofits devoted to small slices of a problem and they have needed to be merged."
February 23, 2010	 USC News	Conducting 'Top Secret Talks'	NYU Wagner	Public Access	Individual programs are presented by organizations such as the Columbia Journalism Review, Human Rights Watch, New York University's Wagner School of Public Service, the Asia Society, New York University and the Center for Public Integrity.

February 23, 2010	 The Jewish Week	Orthodox Scandals Could Harm Power Base, Experts Warn	Mitchell Moss	State Politics	The perception of corruption in the Orthodox establishment could make politicians "more alert as to whom they are dealing with. The problem is that what we are seeing may not be new, but it means they are being caught. We are discovering that spiritual values can mask criminal behavior."
February 28, 2010	 The New York Times	Next Problem: Governing New York (op-ed)	Mitchell Moss	State Politics	"Governors do make a difference in New York. This is a predominantly rural state with 62 counties ranging in size from Hamilton, with a population of 5,000, to Kings, which has almost 2.5 million residents. And it is not an easy state to govern."