

NYU Wagner In the Media: May 2010

Date	Media	Headline	Wagner Source	Discipline	Interview/Excerpt
May 1, 2010		Commishing Upon a Star	Mitchell Moss	Urban Politics	"Ray [Kelly] is a rock star that also happens to be the police commissioner. He's smart, he's fun and he radiates power."
May 4, 2010		Demand Grows for F.H.A. Mortgages	Ingrid Gould Ellen	Housing	"F.H.A. is in a tough place. Its role is to provide credit to the market at times when private lenders withdraw because they see it as too risky. On the one hand, we get upset if it isn't lending enough, but by definition they're coming in at risky times. It's a little bit of a Catch-22."
May 4, 2010		Politicians use Fox for Visibility	Harold Ford Jr.	Politics	On a smaller scale, MSNBC "Hardball" host Chris Matthews mulled running for the U.S. Senate from Pennsylvania, while former Tennessee congressman Harold Ford Jr., a commentator for the network, considered a Senate bill from New York.
May 6, 2010		The degradation of John McCain	Bob Shrum	Politics	"Angrily scorning his own past positions, McCain behaves like a batty, deluded uncle. But his hypocrisy is tragically rational."
May 7, 2010		Who Could Best Lead the GAO? [opinion column]	Paul Light	Federal Governance	"Lost in news reports about recess appointments and Senate delays is the long-awaited appointment of the comptroller general of the United States -- perhaps the most important job that most Americans do not know about."
May 7, 2010		NYU Economist Explains How World's Poor Live on $2 a Day	Jonathan Morduch	Microfinance	Dr. Morduch's research focuses on global poverty. At a public lecture earlier in the day, Dr. Morduch struck similar themes during a discussion about how businesses and philanthropies choosing socially sound investments are making a big difference in the world.
May 9, 2010		High Performance Government Essential to Restore Trust	Paul Light	Federal Governance	Light said the Campaign [For High Performance Government] was spurred by "breakdowns in the federal hierarchy," and will focus on three specific areas: the presidential appointment process, duplication and overlap of government programs, and civil service reform.
May 10, 2010		Senior Stories: Andi Israel -- The Go-Getter	Andi Israel [student]	Higher Education	Israel's plans for life after GW involve moving to another new city -this time New York ... at the NYU Wagner School of Service, and I'm going for my master's in urban planning, she said. "I'm happy that I'm going to get D.C., New York, and then eventually move back to L.A. and have a good mix of the cities and how they work."
May 10, 2010		Systèmes de soins et santé des populations: à la recherche des indicateurs pertinents [opinion column]	Victor Rodwin	Health Policy and Management	Pour ma part, si je devais choisir seulement trois indicateurs, je m'intéresserais non seulement aux conséquences des inégalités sociales (CDSS) mais aussi à celles découlant d'obstacles à l'accès aux soins d'utilité médicale, c'est-à-dire ceux qui servent à prévenir les maladies (vaccinations, dépistages) et à réduire les hospitalisations évitables.
May 12, 2010		The Struggle to Preserve the Brooklyn Navy Yard	Mitchell Moss	Urban Planning	"The Navy Yards really had a solid 30 years of public neglect."
May 13, 2010		Rescuing Elena Kagan from "smears"	Bob Shrum	Politics	"Republicans predictably are waging a faux battle against the nominee's make-believe radicalism. But why must the White House validate bigotry in defending her?"

May 14, 2010		Kagan's First-Hand White House Experience is Rare on Supreme Court	Paul Light	Federal Governance	"She knows what it's like to get something done in a system that impedes breakthroughs at every corner. . . . Having someone who understands the frustration of running something would be helpful to the court."
May 16, 2010		U.S. Supreme Court Justice Nominee, Elena Kagan	Bob Shrum	U.S. Supreme Court	"The nominee, as usual, is going to give carefully rehearsed answers. They're going to be as noncontroversial as possible. Then the process is going to move forward. I, I do quarrel with the rewriting of history to explain this."
May 17, 2010		Fourth Ave. to Become Brooklyn Boulevard?	Capstone Program	Urban Planning	It's been called dreary, drab even depressing, but if a new plan to revitalize 4th Avenue gains steam, the dowdy thoroughfare might be on its way to finally getting some of that much wanted respect.
May 17, 2010		Fourth Avenue to Become 'Brooklyn Boulevard?'	Capstone Program	Urban Planning	Brooklyn Borough President Marty Markowitz enlisted students from NYU Wagner to contribute ideas to the project, and they produced these renderings of a future Fourth Avenue paradise....
May 20, 2010		Democrats won--now what?	Bob Shrum	Politics	"Democrats surprised Republicans--and probably themselves--Tuesday. Now Obama must define the campaign narrative that can keep his party in power past November."
May 20, 2010		The Leadership Problem Obama's Hiring Initiative Won't Solve [opinion column]	Paul Light	Federal Governance	"The current federal hiring process is more appealing to applicants who want security, not the chance to make a difference."
May 25, 2010		Washington's $1 Trillion Opportunity [opinion column]	Paul Light	Federal Governance	"If the [President's blue-ribbon fiscal] commission wants a more positive note the next time it meets, it should take a look at the $1 trillion opportunity that resides in comprehensive bureaucratic reform."
May 25, 2010		Obama's Leaky Offshore Drilling Halt Raises Eyebrows	Paul Light	Federal Governance	"[Y]ou have the execution of a critical order that appears to have been basically done through the most casual way possible under Federal law."
May 27, 2010		The U.S. Joins the Euro Zone	Bob Shrum	International Politics	"Greece, with a GDP the size of greater Dallas-Fort Worth, has sent shockwaves from China to the U.S. Like it or not, we're in the euro zone now."
May 28, 2010		Real Estate Guru Establishes NYU Campus in D.C.	Brademas Center	Higher Education	The Office of Government and Community Affairs and the Brademas Center for the Study of Congress will also have offices in the building.
May 30, 2010		Fixes Eyed for Brooklyn's Scary 4th Ave.	Capstone Program	Urban Planning	The plan, "Vision for the Fourth Avenue Corridor," was put together by urban-planning students from New York University's Robert F. Wagner Graduate School of Public Service, at the request of [Brooklyn Borough President Marty] Markowitz. The plan outlines ways to improve the 6.2-mile artery, which stretches from downtown Brooklyn all the way to the foot of the Verrazano-Narrows Bridge.
